

246981

Maas' wa' a' Siu pa' wa' Ni u'sa' na Ka' wa'.

The language of the book is a form of Old English, likely a dialect from the Northumbrian region. The text is written in a cursive script, characteristic of the period. The content appears to be a religious or legal document, possibly a charter or a collection of laws. The text is written in a single column, with some lines being longer than others, suggesting a mix of prose and verse. The ink is dark, and the parchment is aged and slightly discolored. The text is written in a cursive script, characteristic of the period. The content appears to be a religious or legal document, possibly a charter or a collection of laws. The text is written in a single column, with some lines being longer than others, suggesting a mix of prose and verse. The ink is dark, and the parchment is aged and slightly discolored.